

To Whom it May Concern:

About the "RockStar Games" title: "Bully"

Persistent bullying is every bit as emotionally damaging as other kinds of abuse.

I hereby notify you of my intention to boycott any store that sells this game through the holiday season, and have widely encouraged my friends, loved ones, and online contacts to do likewise. It is time that companies and schools showed some responsibility in recognition of the idea that bullying, whether it is simply emotional and verbal, is ABUSE.

The potential for tragedy is obvious. The airlines uses flight simulators because they are highly effective at training pilots – how can you or RockStar seriously claim there will be no negative impact on children through the use of this bullying simulator?

"Bully" is nothing less than the glorification of emotional abuse. This holiday season I will buy no games or Christmas presents in your stores until you show some corporate responsibility and leadership, and stop the sales of this game.

Signed: _____

For more information on Peer Abuse and Bullying, see:

Staci's Place

<http://www.brandijasmine.com/web/staci/>